PETROLEUM, Mo., Nov. 24.—The death of Peter Clark, wife of George Clark, colored, which occurred here at a late hour Sunday night, is one of the most cold-blooded murders that has ever been committed in this state. Last Thursday night according to Clark's own statement, he was home under the influence of liquor and finding his wife absent, lay down at the foot of the bed and went to sleep. His wife, on her return home prepared supper and then awoke him, which angered Clark so much that he seized an axe and struck her on the head with it, inflicting a wound which crushed the skull in half and finally resulted in his death. Clark, after committing the deed, fled to Norfolk, where he was captured on Friday last and Sunday he was brought here, strongly manacled, and jailed. The colored people here, both men and women, are very indignant at Clark's brutal act and threats have been made of lynching him. The sergeant of the city, Major Arthur Johnston, being apprehensive that an attempt would be made to lynch Clark, is at the jail in person prepared to defend his prisoner should there be any attempt at mob violence.

BURNED HIMSELF TO DEATH.

Special Telegram to The Star.

BUNNELL, Me., Nov. 24.—Saturday night Alexander Gibbons, a man well known here, left town about 9 o'clock to go to his home three miles north. He was intoxicated, and shortly after leaving was found a little out of town lying on the ground, his clothing on fire. He had succeeded in getting off part of his breeches and remained all alone, making a desperate effort to save his life.

The party found him near the lake. It was thought that the man was shot. His eye betrayed a former acquaintance. The young lady blushed and picked up a cigar of the Colorado shade.

"Is this clear Havana?" she asked.

"Imported goods."

She carefully examined the weed between her gloved fingers. She raised it to her tip-tipped nose and sniffed it critically. At last she said:

"I'll take two boxes. I'm sure papa will be delighted with my choice."

Again there was a peculiar change exchanged between the cigar and his fat customer.

"Yes," he remarked in an easy, off-hand way. "We will not do like them. They are all I believe, the kind he usually smokes."

"Pretty smooth bit of acting, that," said the cigar man after she passed out.

There is nothing whatever in Mr. CORRIGAN's claim to a perpetual franchise on Eighteenth or any other street. With the exception of the Broadway line, all of Mr. CORRIGAN's street car franchises will expire in a comparatively short time.

That the prosperity of Kansas City is permanent is fully evident from the clearing house association show beyond a doubt. The clearings for to-day reach the large sum total of $858,839, or an increase of 105.8 per cent over the corresponding day last year, when they were $417,297.

Because Mr. CORRIGAN is willing to build a cable road on Twelfth street thereby greatly benefiting the property on that street, he asks that he may be permitted to operate his horse car lines on Eighteenth and other streets for the next thirty years no matter what may be the injury to property on those streets. Such a proposition is generous, indeed.

If Mr. CORRIGAN wants a cable road on any street, let an ordinance granting a franchise for such road be prepared substantially like that under which the present cable line is operating. The ordinance should not contain a franchise for operating a cable road on any other street or an extension of existing street car franchises.

MISS ANDERSON AT A REHEARSAL.—

The Great Actress Superintends the Work on the Stage.

New York Tribune.

For the past ten years there have been many improvements in street transit appliances and there is no way of estimating what other inventions will follow during the coming ten years. Streets which now have horse car roads, the franchises for which will expire within the next ten years, should make no concessions which would interfere with the taking advantage of all improvements when the present franchises expire.

The suspicion that the late billiard tournament in Chicago was a hippodrome becomes almost a certainty in view of the settlement made of the triple tie in which the tournament resulted. It has been decided to divide the stakes; thus leaving the question of superiority between the three players still undecided.

Lovers of the "gentleman's game" will justly be disgusted at this result, and hereafter will be inclined to look with suspicion upon future contests between the "greatest billiard players of the world."

The war between the Gentiles and Mormons in Utah seems likely to result in a marked improvement in private morals by all people of that territory. The Gentiles, backed by the United States authorities, have put several leading Mormons in prison for practicing polygamy, and now the Mormons are retaliating by causing the arrest of leading Gentiles for various violations of the seventh commandment. On both sides skeletons are being ruthlessly dragged from dark closets, and the disclosures are in the highest degree startling. Several prominent United States officials have already been arrested, and the panic caused by this Mormon compact will probably result in the most rigid adherence to the moral law.

The attorney for ex-Public Administrator NOLAN is very indignant at the treatment which his client had received and urges in defense that NOLAN has turned over property sufficient to cover the amount of his stealings from the widows and orphans of Jackson county. If this be true it is only the good luck of NOLAN's victims that they lose nothing by his dishonesty and in no way lessens his guilt in the premises. It is the same kind of argument used by the same attorney in the SCHAEFFER case—that Mr. BLAIR had lost nothing by his connection with SCHAEFFER. But SCHAEFFER was convicted. In this case, if the heirs have lost nothing by NOLAN's speculations, it is not the fault of Mr. NOLAN.

AUSTRIA is said to be out of humor with Uncle Sam, and a report is current that she will not send a successor to Baron von SCHAEFFER, who was recently recalled from Washington and retired on account of age, until the president shall have appointed a successor to Mr. KELLEY, who was snubbed by the Austrian government. As the government of Austria saw fit to reject the last American sent there in the capacity of minister, why not let them go without a diplomatic representative of the United States? In these days of the oceanic cable and rapid steamers the post of minister plenipotentiary is rather ornamental than useful, anyway, and as he is a very expensive ornament, he could be abolished altogether without any serious harm done to any one concerned.

The merchants of St. Joe are very happy over what they consider a great concession made to them in the way of rates by the Union Pacific railroad. This concession consists of a reduction of rates west of Grand Island, Neb., which will open up a large amount of hitherto unexplored territory to the traveling men of St. Joseph. The merchants of the latter city say that therefore they have been compelled to face such exorbitant rates of freight that Kansas City and Omaha have been enabled to undersell them. The result of this change is that forty or fifty new salesmen have already taken the field, and hope, with the facilities recently obtained, to be able to drive all competition out. Possibly it might be well for the business men of this city to look closely into the situation and take prompt measures to maintain the foothold they have already gained in Nebraska. There is little doubt that with increased railroad facilities and a due amount of exertion Kansas City can build up and maintain a business that will leave St. Joe and all other competitors far in the rear.

Another illustration of the fact that the evening paper is generally the first to publish important news was given by THE STAR yesterday. The proceedings of the cattle convention in St. Louis—the most important meeting of the kind ever held—were given in full in the early edition of this paper. The graphic details of the terribly fatal tenement house fire in New York were presented; the manifests of Governor HILL on the STELLING case was given to thousands of readers while the doings of the Irish Nationalists in Chicago, the progress of the European war, the panic on the Petroleum Exchange and hundreds of other items concerning the doings of the world yesterday were found in their proper places in these columns, and were copied into the morning papers this morning. As we have repeatedly asserted, the morning papers are not to blame for printing the news second-hand. Everybody knows that the morning papers are enterprising and ambitious, but they are printed in the wrong time of day to be first in the field with the news of the day.

AMERICAN JUDAISM.

The platform adopted at the recent rabbinical convention of the Reformed Hebrew church is a matter of great interest. It announces the completion of one of the most during this century. It is virtually an abandonment of Judaism by a great body of the Jewish people. We do not know exactly what proportion of our Jewish fellow-citizens adhere to the Reformed Hebrew church, but we know that the number is large, and that it covers many of the most distinguished and intelligent Jews. The rabbis gathered recently at Pittsburg were men of note and power. They preside over and speak for large, wealthy and intelligent congregations. Any intercession from such men deserves respectful attention, and this recent utterance is most significant.

It is a declaration, to use their own words, that they "consider themselves no longer a nation, but a religious community." And in this statement of religious belief they drop all doctrines specially Hebraic, and range themselves with the general mass of monotheists. They do not adopt Christianity, but their doctrines are not far from those of the more radical Unitarians.

Of course many peculiar Jewish customs and rites are retained, but they are retained rather as heirlooms than as tokens. The Jewish people have justly a pride in their race. And as a man may place on his seal a coat-of-arms formed by his ancestors, so these modern Jews retain some of the ancient distinctive badge of their people. But it is in much the same way as heraldic bearings are used in this country, to gratify a sentiment. The American Jew is ranging himself as an American to the country which has received him in the same footing that she receives all other men who give her loyalty.

With the theological aspect of this movement are not now concerned. We leave that to theologians. But we recognize this recent declaration a tribute to our national institutions, of which we may be justly proud.

That which the persecutions of the Old World could not do to the justice of the New World has accomplished. The people, who amid all the tempest of scorn and oppression which beat about them in the middle ages, and which has not quite died away as yet in Europe, finally stood by their race lines and named the banners of their race pride, will be heard from if they are denied that right by any action on the part of the council. AT LAST.

A Long Felt Want Supplied.

It has always been a reproach upon Kansas City and a source of annoyance to her people that they have never heretofore been supplied with a clean and respectable market place, and many consider this an off-side battle because the people who go to the Market place for fresh produce are compelled to walk through mud and slush up to their shoe tops, only to be disappointed in not finding what they desire to purchase. A reform in our market fairs has recently been inaugurated by Messrs. A. Brown and M. R. Downs, who justly appreciate the value of a clean and better place for holding markets, and that afforded by the public square and knowing the requirements of our great city, are now building what they are pleased to term the Central market. This large and spacious building situated on the southeast corner of Washington and Main streets, is high, being 500 x 110 feet, and so arranged that it will accommodate nearly eighty stalls, which are now being rented out to applicants. The building will be fully equipped with all necessary accessories. Entrances to the first and second floors will be on both Walnut and Eleventh streets.

On the first floor the stalls will be amply stocked with fresh meats, fish, poultry, oysters, game, butter, eggs, milk, etc. The second floor will be devoted chiefly to fruits, vegetables, confectionery, toys, fancy goods, etc. The restaurant will occupy one of the stalls for the convenience of the public and the opening day will be Dec. 1. The entire building will be presided over by a competent superintendent, who will see that the market is kept in a clean and well regulated manner.

The superior excellence of this kind of a market is at once apparent. In regard to the benefits of the old style market in having nothing but the freshest articles on sale while at the same time this new style market keeps everything in the cleanest and neatest shape; besides, you can always find at this market whatever you may want for supplying your table, and the prices are reasonable, commanding the patronage of all home keepers.

The main object of the Central market and the chief motive of its projectors is to provide a first-class, neat and well stocked market, in order to supply the people with fresh produce every day in the cleanest, neatest and choicest shape possible. The opening, as above stated, will take place on Dec. 1, and every one ought to take advantage of this laudable enterprise and patronize it.
